FIRST TIME CRUISING: HOW TO GET THE TOTAL EXPERIENCE

By [http://EzineArticles.com/expert/Terence_Zweni/2287815] Terence Zweni

First time cruising is exciting yet it requires patience and a lot of research to make the most out of your planned cruise. The cruise ship is packed with a lot of goodies from activities for children to the activities that old people want to engage themselves into. It is only right that when going on a cruise for the first time you should be able to make the most out of your money.

First time cruising is tricky. Here are some of the things that you need to prepare for.

Pre-cruise Studies: Always research about the cruise ship and the trip itself. Everything else that you need should have been pre-arranged from the cabins you'll be sleeping in to the food that you'll dine.

Don't double tip: When paying for your trip you have already been charged about 10-15% for every meal that you will be having. It is really not that necessary to give tips.

When it rains pack right: When travelling on a cruise ship, it is always a must to be prepared with clothes and other stuff that you can wear when it rains. You can't always be so sure that the weather forecast is right. Sometimes there are sudden splashes of rain and you don't want your travel experience to be ruined just because you were soaked in the rain. Stay slim amidst the all-you-can-eat buffet: Remember that all of these are paid for. If you wish to stay slim despite the huge amount that you paid for then that's completely your discretion. In case you really want to enjoy that sumptuous feast, here's what you can do. Instead of taking the elevator when roaming around the ship, why not try taking the stairs for a change. This is to ensure that you'll burn those calories just right.

Design a Ship Tour for Embarkation Day: You don't want to waste your time and energy sitting on a cabin while waiting for your ship to arrive at the pier. You can explore the ship. Take a map of the whole ship. You can use the map provided after you book for that cruise. Look at the main areas that you will be going like your cabin, the dining area, and other parts of the ship where passengers are allowed to explore.

Today, cruises have Wi-Fi so Internet connection wouldn't really be that much of a problem. Instead of wallowing yourself in your social media accounts, you can go around and look for other activities that are going on at the various stations inside the ship. It will let you see how beautiful the ship is. You will also get to experience a lot of amazing activities happening while in the cruise.

Don't forget to enjoy and try to document every piece of that memory for keepsakes. It is always good to have something that you could look back into for years. Those memories of your first time in a cruise will be rooted in your heart and mind always.

HOW TO PLAN A CRUISE VACATION

By [http://EzineArticles.com/expert/Anubhav_Yadav/2283986]Anubhav Yadav

A cruise vacation can be exciting as it offers a range of things like enjoying luxury services, enjoying gourmet meals, and shopping, all aboard a ship, while you are travelling from one place to another. However, if this is the first time you will be taking a cruise, then it's always preferable to do some planning to so that nothing can go wrong with your vacation. Here are some ways to plan your first cruise vacation effectively.

Decide Where You Want to Go

It's very important to choose your destination because certain parts of the world might not be feasible for cruising at particular times of the year. Also, deciding the route will help you adjust your budget. For instance, you can fly into a certain place, enjoy the stay there, and then get aboard the cruise. This way, you might be able to save some money on your travel. So, if you are booking cheap flights or any other part of the world, you will be able to spend the saved money on a cruise.

Get in Touch with a Travel Agent

If you are unsure of the route to take or the cruise to choose, get in touch with a travel agent. They will be able to help you out. In fact, they might even be able to guide on the best cruises in the world, while also keeping your budget in mind.

Set a Budget Aside

When you are travelling on a cruise, there will be many avenues where you can spend money. Which is why it is important to make sure you have budget and stick within that.

Don't go overboard with your expenses and spend your money wisely.

Also, take most of your essentials with you so that you don't have to spend money on buying them on the ship.

Get a Medical Checkup Done

A lot of people catch sea fever when they are travelling by the sea. If you have motion sickness, you have higher chances of falling sick on board. So, before you embark on your trip, get a full check up done and take necessary medications with you. Also, if you are suffering from any illnesses at the moment, take the prescribed medicines with you so that you don't face any problem on board.

These are some of the ways in which you can book your first cruise holiday. Just remember to book flights to places that want to visit but aren't covered by the cruise. Keep a close eye on your budget and make sure you have everything you need with you when finally set sail for our destination.

A CRUISE - THE PERFECT COUPLES' ROMANTIC GETAWAY

By [http://EzineArticles.com/expert/Alex_Stewart/158210] Alex Stewart

With the stresses of work, family schedules, finances and kids, most couples need the occasional break - a romantic retreat to rekindle their romance, invigorate their relationship and give them time to simply relax. If you're looking for the perfect romantic getaway that combines worry-free planning, all-inclusive budgeting and romantic sparkle, cruise travel is a great option.

To learn about how to book the best romantic cruise for you and your loved one, keep reading for great tips on everything from what to look for in a cruise ship to how to get the best deals for your spouse.

Opt For a Cruise with an Age Limit

The last thing you want on your romantic getaway is to be surrounded by toddlers on their way to a puppet show at the children's pool. So, book a cruise with an enforced age limit.

Most cruise lines offer cruises that restrict boarding to both individuals 25 and older or married individuals 21 and older. The bulk of these cruises are specifically targeted toward couples and will offer amenities like increased room service, couples' massages, formal dining and couples' activities.

If you're unable to find a cruise with an age limit that's right for you, most ships offer areas, including pools that are adults-only.

Stay Away From "Singles" Cruises

In contrast to couples' cruises, some cruise lines offer cruise vacations that are specifically for single travelers or the 'spring break' party crowd. Unless you want to spend your romantic getaway immersed in loud dance music and terrible pick up lines, you're going to want to stay away from these options.

Pick a Boat Size That Works For You

A larger boat may have more passengers and a less intimate "feel," but it also allows for greater anonymity while on-board ship and a larger range of facilities. When choosing a ship, think about what's important for you in terms of privacy and boat size.

Get the Balcony

As tempting as it may be to book an inside cabin for a discount, know that the space is small and often windowless. If this cruise is a once-in-a-lifetime romantic treat, it's time to splurge and opt for a cabin with a romantic balcony. When you're watching the stars go by from bed, you'll be thankful.

How to Get Great Couples' Deals

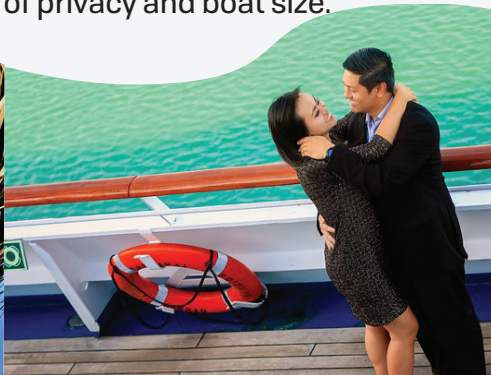

Booking as a couple gives you an advantage. You can often look for "companion" rates that apply to either cabin bookings or air fare to your port. Many cruise lines and some air carriers offer a companion discount for couples traveling together.

WHAT IS THE BEST CARRIBEAN CRUISE LINE AND ROUTE?

By [http://EzineArticles.com/expert/John_A_Wright/138716] John A Wright

Caribbean cruises are all the rage these days. When you consider the range of amenities and facilities, the varied ports of call, and the range of activities on offer, Caribbean cruises are pretty good value. They offer much more than any one Caribbean resort can offer, and can be great fun no matter what the weather is like. Modern cruise liners are huge and can usually handle rough weather in stride without the passengers on board even noticing. The popularity of Caribbean cruises has resulted in several cruise lines operating in the region, as well as several different routes to choose from.

So how do you decide which cruise line and route?

Firstly, let us take a look at the Caribbean cruise lines on offer. The big names are Royal Caribbean, Princess and Norwegian, and it makes sense to look at these three first. They have made their names based on their reputation of reliability, service and range of amenities, services, activities and routes. The pick of these would have to be Royal Caribbean. They have the largest and most modern fleet of cruise ships in the Caribbean, and, despite normal fares being a tad expensive, have some surprisingly cheap Caribbean cruise package deals especially in the off season. However if you are planning your vacation for a high season, book well in advance as Royal Caribbean is often sold out months beforehand. Norwegian is also a great cruise line and a little cheaper than Royal Caribbean, while Princess is another good option for those looking for a deal. There are several other Caribbean cruise operations that work on theme-based cruises, such as Celebrity, which may suit certain travelers' tastes.

Now, on to Caribbean cruise routes. Generally cruises take place in a certain area of the Caribbean, visiting the ports of call particular to that region. Basically, the Caribbean Sea can be divided into Eastern, Western, Northern and Southern areas. Depending on the length of the cruise, one or a few of these regions can be explored. There are also cruises just to one destination, such as Bermuda or the Bahamas (both of which are technically not actually part of the Caribbean, but close enough!). Personally, I think the Eastern and Southern routes are the most interesting. The Eastern routes usually stop in at fantastic places such as Antigua, St Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla, all of which are steeped in history and have the friendliest people. These routes may also take you through the French and Netherlands Antilles, which have their own distinctive cultural atmosphere and magnificent sights. The Southern cruises also take you to magical islands such as Trinidad, Tobago, Curaçao, Aruba, Barbados and Bonaire. Those with enough time and money can easily combine these two regions into one cruise, seeing what I consider to be the best of what the Caribbean has to offer!
